Changing Tourism

Today people go on holiday a lot more than they did 200 years ago because there is better transport, relatives and friends are more spread out and people have more spare time and money.

One of the earliest holidays for lots of people was to visit the seaside closest to where they lived. This created more jobs and made the areas more money.

By the 1960s, flights were quicker and cheaper than they used to be and more people began to travel abroad for holiday. Seaside towns, however, were now getting less money.
