Roald Dahl is one of the most popular children's authors in the world. Some of his more famous books include Charlie and the Chocolate Factory, James and the Giant Peach, Fantastic Mr. Fox, George's Marvellous Medicine, and Matilda.

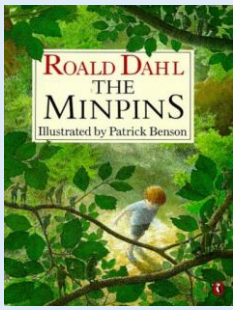

Roald Dahl was born on September 13, 1916 in Llandaff, Wales. Roald spoke Norwegian when he was at home with his family. The entire Dahl family, both parents and his sisters Astri, Alfhild and Else, spoke their native language while at home. His mother raised him as well as three sisters and two step-sisters. He liked to read adventure stories as a kid. His mum would tell him all sorts of fantasy stories, which he loved. Roald didn't like school much, so when he turned 18 he decided not to go to university. Then WWII started when he was 23 and he joined the Royal Air Force. It was after an air-crash and "a monumental bash on the head" that he began to write.

He wrote many famous children's stories and many of his books and stories have been made into films and TV shows all over the world. Among his most popular books are Charlie and the Chocolate Factory, James and the Giant Peach, Matilda, The Witches, The BFG and Fantastic Mr Fox. Many of his children's books have pictures drawn by Quentin Blake. He had four daughters and a son. He died on the 23rd November, 1990.
