

Dear Malala,

Thank you for your letter. I love what you have done for country, I couldn't agree more. All children should be entitled to an education. I couldn't imagine life without school.

In my class, pretty year six we have been talking about children's rights. I feel that children should not be forced to work as they are not ready for the stress of a working life.

With regards to health care, and here in the UK we have the NHS (National Health Service). If we get sick we can go to the hospital to get the right medication. I think all countries should have something similar otherwise people could get too poorly and it's dread to think what could happen to them.

I also believe that children should be protected from violence and neglect simply because that's too much trauma

Thanks for reading!

from Annabelle

PS - You go girl!