

She walked all the way to the old, long forgotten port leaning on the river. Then, she drew a red boat and she set off. At the end of the river, there was a castle but there was people living in there. In front of her, it was...

A citadel. A fortified town with people living in the fortified town in a dreamy world. The girl firstly entered through the archway entrance and then got "carried" up to the water. At that moment, she greeted some guards...

"Welcome! Are you here to visit our citadel?" exclaimed the cheerful guard.

The girl nervously replied. "Yes, I'm on a long journey!"

"A long journey?!?" said the guard. "How many kilometres have you travelled?"

"Just about 3km" answered the girl.

"Uhh... Our citadel isn't 3kms away from the magical forest."

"How long have I travelled then?" said the girl.

The guard checked on his phone. "It's 1km away from our citadel."

And then the girl asked where she wanted to go and the guards let her.
