Continuing from excellent reading opportunities in our Nursery

- The children who were in our Nursery, are familiar with some of the resources used in RWI.
- They have met Fred – and know he only speaks in sounds not words.
- They have been introduced to the pictures and sounds on large cards.
- They have been surrounded by quality texts and enjoyed bringing stories to life through our DEAL work, puppets in the provision and talk for writing – which helps them to retell the story in sequence and great detail – thus improving their bank of vocabulary.

Tips when reading books together

- 10 tips when reading

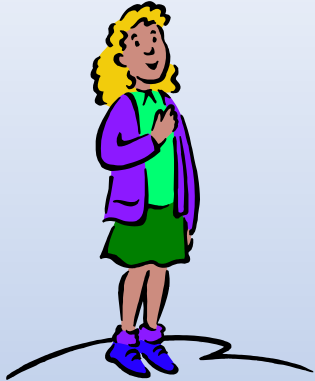

Reading doesn't just happen

- Learning to read is an amazing process that is so natural – you probably won't even remember learning how to do it. “I just could!”
- However . . . The reality of learning to read is very different. Done successfully – we experience the first bullet point above.
- The hard work already started when you read books with your child when they were a baby. Reading becomes a natural experience because they are familiar with how books work.
