Parents' Guide to Right Respecting

What is Rights Respecting?

A Rights Respecting School, as recognized by UNICEF, is a school that prioritizes the rights of children as outlined in the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child (UNCRC). This means the school actively promotes children's rights and responsibilities, creating a safe, inclusive, and supportive learning environment where children can thrive.

How we learn about our Rights

- Weekly Rights Respecting Assembly
- Focus article of the week
- Follow up work in class
- In our lessons across the curriculum

We are Change Makers

- We learn about school, community and global issues (linked to the Sustainable Development Goals).

-We learn about the different mechanisms for using our voice and making change (including democracy and global citizenship)

How you can help at home…

-Talk about Rights!
-Use Rights language at home
-Support at school with events and talk to children about them
-Talk about global issues and Sustainable Development Goals
- Ask children about the Rights Respecting council Action Plan to hear about activism at school.
