Zones of Regulation

This week we have started to recap our learning about the Zones of Regulation as a tool to help children cope with their feelings and become able to self-regulate. My assemblies this term will go back through the different approaches.

Identifying feelings

We talked about the fact that we all have feelings and they are a part of everyone. The children thought about how we feel different things at different times depending on what happens to them. We learned that it is important not to be ashamed of our feelings and that feelings are a reaction to how our bodies are feeling.
