Viking Day! - Aventurine

"On Wednesday we did a reenactment of the not-so-wonderous day the Vikings raided Lindisfarne. We came dressed up as Anglo Saxons, Monks and Vikings into school. We took photos of the different groups and we made props a couple of days before, we used them for the re-enactment." - by Safy Goodman

"Today we are going to travel back in time, as I tell you about the Viking era. It all started on a peaceful morning, as the Anglo-Saxons and Monks went about their day when some villagers noticed some boats on the horizon. As we know, they were Vikings, but the people of Lindisfarne had no idea who or what they were. As the boat pulled on to the beach, the Anglo-Saxons realised they were not here to trade or fish, they were here to fight. The fight lasted for a few hours before the Vikings left triumphant, leaving many people dead and all treasures gone from homes and churches leaving only a few lucky survivors. That attack sent a shock through Europe, as nobody knew where the Vikings would strike next. Aventurine class reenacted this attack on Wednesday the 9th"
