

Great Fire of London 1666

Sticky Facts

The Great Fire of London happened a long time ago in 1666.

It took 5 days to put the fire out.

It began at Pudding Lane at the bakery.

Samuel Pepys wrote a diary about what happened.

Most houses were made of wood with a thatched roof.

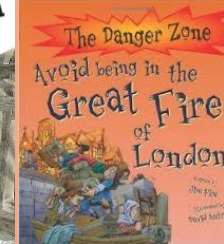

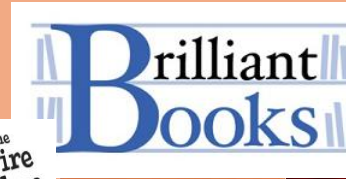

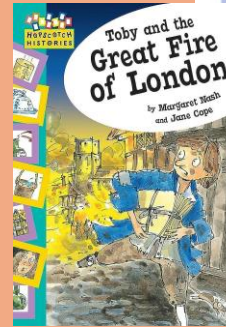

Houses were close together so the fire spread quickly.

Candles were used for light and flames were used for cooking and heating homes.

Hundreds of houses burned down.

Many people in London were homeless.

King Charles II was King during the event.
